State of the Ports

Airport / Seaport Panel Discussion

Global commerce, both current and projected, demand that South Florida shed its title as the Gateway of the Americas – taking up instead a new title... The Gateway of the World!

Despite the global recession, South Florida's various air & seaport facilities continue to play a critical role in both the State and U.S. economy. Find out how a re-alignment of global trade routes and an evolutionary leap in transport vehicles, will strategically position South Florida as the new hub in air and sea travel and logistics.

Investments in port infrastructure and community improvement projects are already underway, and are expected to grow in frequency over the coming years. Don't be left out!

Join Director Phillip Allen (Port Everglades), Assistant Director of Development Angela Newland (Fort Lauderdale International Airport) as well as representatives from Miami International Airport and the Port of Miami for our State of the Ports panel discussion. Bernard Zyscovich, FAIA will moderate this event.
